

Milano lounge

The MILANO armchair studied and developed in collaboration with architect Riccardo Rocco, is characterized by the beech plywood shell.

The opening angle between the seat and the backrest has been studied to reduce the compression stress on the spine. The use of polyurethane foams with different densities guarantee the comfort of the spectator.

The cinemas version is characterized by the tip-up seat operating by gravity, while the version with fixed seat and swivel base has been developed for various uses, such as waiting rooms, lounges, living rooms...

There are many possibilities to personalize the armchair with the type of upholstery (fabric, velvet, artificial leather, real leather) and the color. The armchair can be equipped with a leg extension, arm padding and writing tablet for conference rooms.
